Summary and Scope

Why do we have this policy

Purpose

The objective of this policy is to ensure that conflicts of interest within Nuveen's regulated entities are identified, managed and recorded in the proper manner and, where necessary, disclosed to ensure fair treatment of customers.

The identification, management, recording and/or disclosure of Conflicts of Interest also represents a key component with regards to the firms' ability to manage and mitigate its conduct risk.

Scope

This Conflicts of Interest and Inducements Policy (the "Policy") applies to the following Nuveen Europe, Middle East and APAC entities, collectively defined as "Nuveen":

UK domiciled entities

This Policy applies to ALL activities conducted by these entities. All employees are required to comply with this Policy.

The Board of each entity is responsible for overseeing and reviewing the policy. They are also responsible for the management of conflicts of interest for their own business.

Nuveen must, at all times, act in the best interests of its clients.

Identifying Conflicts

Nuveen must take all appropriate steps to identify and to prevent or manage conflicts of interest between:

- (1) Nuveen, including its managers, staff or any person directly or indirectly linked to them by control, and a client of the firm; or
- (2) One client of the firm and another client<sup>1</sup>

that arise in the course of the firm providing any service, including those caused by the receipt of inducements from third parties or by the firm's own remuneration and other incentive structures.

Types of Conflicts

For the purpose of identifying the types of conflicts of interest that arise, or may arise, in the course of providing a service and whose existence may damage the interests of the client(s) including their sustainability preferences, Nuveen must take account of whether the firm, staff or a person directly or indirectly linked by control to the firm:

1. is likely to make a financial gain or avoid a loss, at the expense of the client;
2. has an interest in the outcome of a service provided to the client or a transaction carried out on behalf of the client, which is distinct from the client's interest in that outcome;
3. has a financial or other incentive to favour the interests of one client over another;
4. receives/will receive from a third party an incentive/inducement in relation to a service supplied to the client.

The four provisions above also apply to Nuveen staff directly.

Circumstances which should be considered as giving rise to a conflict include:

- Where there is a conflict between the interests of Nuveen Europe & APAC, a member of its staff or the parent company and the duty the firm owes to their clients.
- The differing interests between clients to which the firm also owes a duty towards.

It is not enough that the firm may gain a benefit if there is not also a possible disadvantage to a client, or that one client to whom the firm owes a duty may make a gain or avoid a loss without there being a concomitant possible loss to another such client.

Conflicts of interest can occur across any area of the business. Appendix 1 contains descriptions and types of Conflicts.

Records of Conflicts

A Nuveen staff member who identifies a conflict, potential or otherwise, must contact Compliance.

The recording of conflicts also represents a key component with regards the firms' ability to manage and mitigate its conduct risk. Compliance will require that a staff member provide a narrative of the conflict. Line managers must be copied on all such correspondence.

<sup>1</sup> Note the wide FCA definition of conflicts to include not just conflicts between the client and the firm but between clients and the firm's staff and affiliates.

The conflict must also be reported to that individual's line manager immediately. Senior management is responsible for reviewing the conflict, actual or potential, and give due consideration as to what they believe is the appropriate action that should be taken.

Any changes to how an identified conflict are being managed or whether the conflict is still deemed relevant must be reported to Compliance by the owner in a timely manner.

A central record of conflicts will be administered and maintained by Compliance ('Conflicts Register')

All records regarding conflicts must be retained for a minimum of 5 years.

A record of relevant conflicts of interests relating to each Luxembourg-domiciled entity has to be kept at the head office of these entities and is maintained by the relevant person responsible for compliance of these entities.

Such record should contain at a minimum the following information:

- description of the conflict of interest and the areas impacted (whether potential or actual);
- name of the person or units identifying the conflict of interest;
- date on which the conflict of interest occurred and/or was identified;
- end date of the conflict or time period of the potential or actual impacts of the conflict of interest;
- description of how the conflict will be managed or mitigated;
- where appropriate, the arrangements for informing investors.

Managing Conflicts

Nuveen must maintain and operate effective organisational and administrative arrangements with a view to taking all reasonable steps to prevent conflicts from adversely affecting the interests of its clients.

Methods of Conflict Management

1. Information barriers – creating information barriers to prevent the flow of information between conflicting business activities.
2. Separate Supervision – separate reporting lines and senior management oversight.
3. Remuneration - ensure appropriate governance, transparency and oversight to ensure an employee does not favour a particular client, product or service.
4. Inappropriate influence – preventing pressure or inappropriate influence being exerted on one employee by another. Nuveen should consider line management arrangements and possible changes to supervision.
5. Segregation of duties – controlling the number of tasks employees are allowed to undertake.
6. Confidentiality - ensure appropriate handling of confidential information, particularly that of clients

7. Governance - The Boards are responsible for the periodic review of all conflicts, or where delegated, to the relevant committee reporting to the Boards. Consideration must be given to whether an appropriate level of independence has been achieved between two opposing sides to a conflict. The duties of Board directors are owed to their respective entity and are not owed to any one shareholder or business line. Directors must generally act in the best interest of the entity they represent and may consider the aligned interests of Nuveen Group and/or TIAA as an element in their decision making process.
8. Disclosure of Interests – individuals have a duty to disclose any interests or activities from where conflicts can arise, such as multiple roles or outside interests.
9. Avoid or decline to act – stepping away from an opportunity or engagement when it is deemed that the conflict cannot be mitigated

Nuveen policies and procedures should be followed where applicable. In some instances, matters should be escalated to Compliance and considered at the appropriate board/delegated committee.

The Nuveen Conflict Matrix (Appendix 1) details examples of the firms inherent conflicts and their management.

Additional Conflicts of Interest Requirements for an AIFM, as per Article 14 of AIFMD.

An AIFM must take all reasonable steps to identify conflicts of interest that arise, in the course of managing AIFs, between:

- The AIFM, including its managers, employees or any person directly or indirectly linked to the AIFM by control, and an AIF managed by the AIFM or the investors in that AIF; or
- An AIF or the investors in the AIF and another AIF; or
- An AIF or the investors in the AIF, and another client of the AIFM; or –
- Two clients of the AIFM

The AIFM must take all reasonable steps to avoid conflicts of interest and where they cannot be avoided, manage, monitor and where applicable disclose those conflicts of interest in order to prevent them adversely affecting the interests of the AIFs and their investors, and to ensure the AIFs it manages are fairly treated.

An AIFM must:

- Maintain and operate effective organisational and administrative arrangements, with a view to taking all reasonable steps designed to identify, prevent, manage, and monitor and where applicable disclose those conflicts of interest in order to prevent them from adversely affecting the interests of the AIFs and their investors.
- Segregate, within its own operating environment, tasks and responsibilities which may be regarded as incompatible with each other or which may generate systemic conflicts of interest; and
- Assess whether its operating conditions may involve any other material conflicts of interest and disclose them to the AIF's investors.

The AIFM must also adhere to the requirements of Article 30 and 37 of AIFMD Level II regulation.

In addition, the responsible compliance officer obtains a regular update regarding the status of existing and potential new conflicts of interest.

Where a Nuveen Europe AIFM entity delegates portfolio management or risk management activities to another entity then they must adhere to the requirements of Article 8o of AIFMD Level II regulations.

In its analysis of the risks of conflicts of interest, the AIFM or Management Company must in particular identify the risks arising from the relationship with the depositary. Moreover, they must take into account the risks arising from the delegation of the AIFs management functions to third parties and, where appropriate, the use of a prime broker.

Additional Australian requirements

The Corporations Act 2001 (the Act) requires that an Australian Financial Services licensee must (among other things):

- do all things necessary to ensure that financial services covered by the licence are provided efficiently, honestly and fairly; and
- have in place adequate arrangements for the management of conflicts of interest that may arise wholly, or partially, in relation to activities undertaken by the licensee in the provision of financial services.

In addition, ASIC guidance release RG 181: Licensing: Managing conflicts of interest details guidance for AFS Licensees on managing, controlling, avoiding and disclosing conflicts of interest.

Directors responsibilities

The Act requires all directors to exercise their powers and discharge their duties in good faith in the best interests of the company and for a proper purpose.

Managed investment schemes

- (i) An AFS licensee is required to act in the best interests of the managed investment scheme's members and, if there is a conflict between the members' interests and its own interests, then the licence holder must give priority to the members' interests.
- (ii) In addition, the Act and ASIC policy requires AFS licensees to have adequate measures in place to manage conflicts of interest that may arise in relation to the activities undertaken in their financial services businesses. Provided the conflict can be managed by a combination of internal controls and adequate disclosure, ASIC policy provides the business can proceed. It will only be where those internal controls are non-existent or disclosure is not made that the business cannot and should not proceed.

Additional Swiss requirements

Conflicts of interest are deemed to exist in the following situations (Art. 24 FinSO):

- Circumstances, in which the Company may, in violation of the principle of good faith, gain a financial advantage or avoid a financial loss at the expense of the client;
- Circumstances in which, in the context of a financial service provided to the client, the Company has an interest in the outcome which conflicts with that of the client;
- Circumstances in which the Company has incentives, such as, but not limited to, financial incentives, to favour the interests of certain clients over those of other clients in the provision of financial services;
- Circumstances in which the Company receives an incentive from a third party in relation with the financial service provided to the client, in the form of financial or non-financial advantages or services, in breach of the principle of good faith.

As a rule, the Company does not receive any sort of compensation including from companies of the group, in relation to the provision of financial services, such as brokerage fees, commissions, inducements, discounts or other financial benefits from, any prospective client or business partner nor does it handle investor subscriptions or money transfers.

Should the Company keep a specific compensation received from third party, it informs the client expressly and in advance of such compensation and requests the client to renounce to the right to the compensation at stake. In particular:

- The Company informs the client of the type and magnitude of the compensation before providing the relevant financial service or the signature of the contract;
- If the Company is unable to determine the compensation amount in advance, the Company informs the client of the criteria used to calculate the compensation as well as the order of magnitude. Upon client's request, the Company informs the client of the compensation, which was effectively received;
- If a compensation from third parties may not, by nature, be transferred to the client, the Company discloses it as a conflict of interests.

The Company generally obtains the clients consent by making them sign a waiver in which the relevant information on the compensations from third parties is specifically mentioned. Whereas it is not practicable to obtain the consent of a client in a specific case, the compensation is disclosed as a conflict of interests.

The following behaviours are forbidden under any circumstances (Art. 27 FinSO):

- Restructuring of a client custody account, unless justified by the economic interest of the client;
- Exploitation of information, in particular by taking advantage of the knowledge of clients' orders to execute beforehand, simultaneously or subsequently transactions for the account of the Company and/or staff members;
- Manipulation of services provided in relation with the issue or placement of financial instruments;
- Indicating to the client a price which deviate from the market price actually obtained when executing an order from the client.

Conflicts of Interest Disclosure Requirements

If arrangements made by Nuveen are not sufficient to ensure, with reasonable confidence, that risks of damage to the interests of a client will be prevented, the firm must ensure that its clients are treated fairly by clearly disclosing the following to the client before undertaking business for the client:

- The general nature or source of conflicts of interest or both; and
- The steps taken to mitigate those risks.

The disclosure must:

- be made in a durable medium;
- clearly state that the organisational and administrative arrangements established by the firm to prevent or manage that conflict are not sufficient to ensure, with reasonable confidence, that the risks of damage to the interest of the client will be prevented;
- explain the risks to the client that arise as a result of the conflict of interest; and
- include specific description of the conflicts of interest that arise in the provision of the investment service or ancillary service, with sufficient detail.

Nuveen should aim to identify and manage the conflicts of interest arising in relation to their various business lines and their group's activities.

Disclosures of conflicts by a firm should not exempt it from the obligation to maintain and operate the effective organisational and administrative arrangements. While the disclosure of specific conflicts of interest is required, an over-reliance on disclosure without adequate consideration as to how conflicts are appropriately managed is not permitted.

Nuveen must treat disclosure of conflicts as a measure of last resort to be used only where the effective organisational and administrative arrangements of the firm are not sufficient to ensure with reasonable confidence, that risks of damage to the interests of the client will be prevented.

Inducements<sup>2</sup>

Nuveen must not pay or accept from any party (other than the client or a person on behalf of the client) any fee or commission in connection with the provision of an investment service or ancillary service.

Nuveen must not provide to or receive from any party (other than the client or a person on behalf of the client) any non-monetary benefit in connection with the provision of an investment service or ancillary service.

Exceptions to the above include:

- a fee, commission or non-monetary benefit which is designed to enhance the quality of the relevant service to the client; and does not impair compliance with the firm's duty to act honestly, fairly and professionally in the best interests of the client;
- a payment or benefit which enables or is necessary for the provision of an investment service by the firm, such as regulatory levies and legal fees and which, by its nature, cannot give rise to conflicts with the firm's duty to act honestly, fairly and professionally in the best interest of the client; or
- third party research received in accordance with the rules on investment research

Where Nuveen pays, provides, accepts or receives a fee, commission or non-monetary benefit which is designed to enhance the quality of the relevant service to the client, then this must be clearly disclosed to the client:

- the existence and nature of the payment or benefit; and
- the amount of the payment or benefit or, where the amount cannot be ascertained, the method for calculating that amount.

That information must be disclosed:

- prior to the provision of the relevant service; and
- in a manner that is comprehensive, accurate and understandable.

Where applicable, Nuveen must inform a client of the mechanisms for transferring to the client the fee, commission, monetary or non-monetary benefit received in relation to the provision of the relevant service.

NOTE: A firm which fails to comply with the above section in bold will be regarded as not fulfilling its regulatory obligations in relation to conflicts of interest and acting honestly, fairly and professionally in accordance with the best interests of its clients.

A fee, commission or non-monetary benefit that is designed to enhance the quality of the relevant service to a client ONLY if:

- it is justified by the provision of an additional or higher-level service to the client and is proportional to the level of inducements received;

<sup>2</sup> Currently Nuveen does not pay for or receive research on Financial Instruments in Europe (MiFID II requirement).

The receipt of soft dollars in other jurisdictions such as Hong Kong and Japan is permitted provided that certain regulatory requirements are met.

- it does not directly benefit the recipient firm, shareholders or employees without a tangible benefit to the client;
- it is justified by the provision of an ongoing benefit to the client in relation to an ongoing inducement; and
- the provision of the service by Nuveen to the client is not biased or distorted as a result of the fee, commission or non-monetary benefit.

Nuveen must fulfil these conditions on an ongoing basis as long as the firm continues to pay or receive the fee, commission or non-monetary benefit.

Disclosure of payments or benefits paid to/received from third parties

Prior to the provision of the relevant service the firm must disclose to the client the information set out above in italics.

For these purposes, minor non-monetary benefits may be described in a generic way, but other non-monetary benefits received or paid by Nuveen in connection with a service provided to the client must be priced and disclosed separately.

Where the firm cannot ascertain on an ex-ante basis the amount of any payment or benefit to be received or paid, and instead discloses to the client the method of calculating the relevant amount, the firm must also inform the client of the exact amount of the payment or benefit received or paid on an ex-post basis.

Where Nuveen receives an inducement on an ongoing basis in relation to an investment service provided to a client, then it must inform the client, at least annually, the actual amount of payment or benefit received. Minor non-monetary benefits may be disclosed in a generic way.

Inducements relating to investment advice and portfolio management

Nuveen must not accept and retain any fee, commission or monetary benefits or accept any non-monetary benefits other than acceptable minor non-monetary benefits or third-party research, in accordance with research rules, where these are paid or provided by any third party or a person acting on behalf of a third party.

An acceptable minor non-monetary benefit is one which:

- is clearly disclosed prior to the provision of the relevant service to the client, which the firm may describe in a generic way;
- is capable of enhancing the quality of service provided to the client;
- is of a scale and nature that it could not be judged to impair the firm's compliance with its duty to act honestly, fairly and professionally in the best interests of the client;
- is reasonable, proportionate and of a scale that is unlikely to influence the firm's behaviour in any way that is detrimental to the interests of the relevant client; and

Consists of:

- information or documentation relating to a financial instrument or an investment service, that is generic in nature or personalised to reflect the circumstances of an individual client;
- written material from a third party that is commissioned and paid for by a corporate issuer or potential issuer to promote a new issuance by the company, or where the third party firm is contractually engaged and paid by the issuer to produce such material on an ongoing basis, provided that the relationship is clearly disclosed in the material and that the material is made available at the same time to any firms wishing to receive it, or to the general public;
- participation in conferences, seminars and other training events on the benefits and features of a specific financial instrument or an investment service;
- hospitality of a reasonable de minimis value, such as food and drink during a business meeting or a conference, seminar or other training events mentioned in the bullet above
- research relating to an issue of shares, debentures, warrants or certificates representing certain securities by an issuer (see Compliance for this eventuality);
- research that is received to evaluate the research providers' service provided that lasts no longer than 3 months
  - no monetary or non-monetary consideration is due to the provider
  - cannot have a trial period with 12 months from termination of previous agreements need to record the dates of the trial period and how Nuveen Europe & APAC satisfied the requirements.

Non-substantive material or services consisting of short-term market commentary on the latest economic statistics or company results or information on upcoming releases or events which are provided by a third party and which:

- contain only a brief unsubstantiated summary of the third party's own opinion on the information; and

- do not include any substantive analysis.

can be viewed to be information in relation to a financial instrument or investment service of a scale and nature such that it constitutes an acceptable minor non-monetary benefit.

Sub-delegation of Portfolio Management Activities into Group Entities

Where Nuveen contracts clients locally and subsequently sub -delegate the portfolio management services to a Nuveen US entity (Nuveen LLC), there is a requirement for local Compliance oversight of any conflicts which have been identified to be prevented or mitigated accordingly.

Record keeping: Inducements

Nuveen must hold records of any fee, commission or non-monetary benefit paid or received by Nuveen from a third party in relation to a service and record how they enhance the quality of service provided to clients.

Oversight and Assurance

As the first line of control, the business must manage all real and potential conflicts of interest that may arise within their areas. Compliance and the relevant Boards or delegated committees shall be responsible for oversight of such conflicts. This may include explanation by senior business management to Boards or delegated committees on how a conflict is being managed, thematic review results based on risk assessment findings, etc.
