

Nuveen Limited Term Municipal Bond Fund

Marketing communication | As of 31 Dec 2025

- The Fund outperformed the benchmark S&P Municipal Bond Short Intermediate Index during the quarter.
- Municipal bonds posted another gain in the fourth quarter, delivering a positive return for the full year 2025. The Federal Reserve cut interest rates twice in the quarter as labor market indicators weakened while economic growth and inflation appeared better than expected, though likely reflecting some distortion from the government shutdown. Municipal credit demand remained strong, amid elevated supply and tax-loss selling at year-end. Municipal yields were little changed across the curve in the quarter.
- The Fund was generally well positioned for the market environment, with favorable duration/yield curve and sector positioning, which was partially offset by an idiosyncratic credit event negatively affecting the portfolio's Brightline position.

Portfolio review

The Fund's broad positioning remained stable over the quarter. Given the shift in the municipal yield curve, the Fund continued to carefully manage its duration and maturity profile to keep the portfolio within its targeted ranges. Credit quality allocations were little changed over the month.

Contributors

The Fund's yield curve distribution was favorable in the flattening yield curve environment during the quarter, driven by the overweight to the best performing duration range of six years and longer. The portfolio's overall duration was slightly longer than the benchmark, which was a marginal positive contributor.

Sector positioning had an overall positive impact on relative performance, where the Fund held overweight exposures to outperforming sectors, including housing, health care, tobacco and utility.

Detractors

The Fund's position in high-speed passenger rail project Brightline was the largest detractor from performance, as certain Brightline bonds experienced negative pricing adjustments in the quarter.

Additionally, an underweight to the tax supported sector was a drag on performance, as the sector outperformed and represents the largest sector weight in the index.

Important information on risk

Mutual fund investing involves risk; principal loss is possible. Debt or fixed income securities such as those held by the Fund, are subject to market risk, credit risk, interest rate risk, call risk, tax risk, political and economic risk, and income risk. As interest rates rise, bond prices fall. Credit risk refers to an issuer's ability to make interest and principal payments when due. Below investment grade or high yield debt securities are subject to liquidity risk and heightened credit risk. The Fund's use of inverse floaters creates effective leverage. Leverage involves the risk that the Fund could lose more than its original investment and also increases the Fund's exposure to volatility and interest rate risk.
