Marketing communication | As of 30 Sep 2025

Effective 25 Mar 2025, James Stephenson joined Susi Budiman, Thomas Ray and Stephen Peña as portfolio managers of the Fund. Thomas Ray announced his retirement and will remain on the Fund until 01 Oct 2025. These updates are not expected to impact the overall investment strategy.

- The Fund (Class I shares) outperformed its benchmark, the Bloomberg U.S. Aggregate Bond Index, in September.
- The U.S. economy continued to slow in September, although growth overall held up well, with real consumption accelerating to above a 2% annualized pace. On the employment front, the partial government shutdown prevented the Labor Department from releasing the September jobs report as well as other labor-market-related data. Available figures, though, showed weekly jobless claims falling to a two-month low. The core Personal Consumption Expenditures (PCE) Price Index increased to 2.9% year-on-year, up from its recent bottom of 2.6% in April and well above the Federal Reserve's 2% target. Despite still-sticky levels of inflation, the Fed reduced rates by 25 basis points in September and penciled in two more cuts for 2025.
- The U.S. yield curve flattened in September. Rates at the front and back end of the curve rallied, while yields in "the belly" (reflecting debt maturing in 2-7 years) held steady or rose. Total returns across fixed income sectors were healthy for the month, with higher quality leading. Preferred securities (+1.51%) and investment grade corporates (+1.50%) performed the best, while asset-backed securities (+0.55%) were relative laggards. U.S. stocks rallied, with the S&P 500 Index advancing +3.65%.

Contributors

The Fund's allocation to convertible securities contributed the most to the Fund's outperformance in September, benefiting from strong security selection in the technology sector.

Investment grade corporate bonds also provided a meaningful lift, fueled by lower rates and tighter credit spreads that followed the Fed's rate cut.

Exposure to common stocks was another positive, as U.S. equities rallied on positive risk sentiment attributed to easing monetary policy.

Detractors

Several common stock positions lagged for the month, including shares of Carrier Global, a provider of high-technology heating, air-conditioning and refrigeration solutions; global cybersecurity firm Gen Digital; and Sanofi, a French multinational pharmaceutical and healthcare company.

Portfolio positioning

The Fund maintained balanced exposure across asset classes, with an up-in-quality tilt in security selection that leaned toward companies with strong balance sheets, sound capital structures and durable free-cash-flow generation. Yields across credit markets stayed relatively high, enabling the investment team to find opportunities to bolster the portfolio's income.

In September, we trimmed exposure to select investment grade corporate names and added to holdings in preferreds, where we saw better risk and reward. We seek to strike a balanced approach between income and capital appreciation, while being cognizant of potential downside risks as economic growth slows. We maintained a relatively shorter duration profile overall, seeing more attractive relative value in spreads versus rates. We continue to find higher yielding opportunities within credit, supported by healthy fundamentals and positive technicals, but are selective given historically tight spreads. Prospective rate cuts and a still growing economy provide a supportive backdrop for equities, but we emphasize that security selection continues to be paramount in generating alpha.

Outlook

We have increased our 2025 forecasts for U.S. real GDP growth and the core PCE Price Index, to 1.5% and 3.2%, respectively, largely reflecting the slower pass-through of tariffs to the broader economy than previously expected. To date, the boost to inflation has been slightly lower than feared, which has accordingly weighed less on consumer spending. Overall, we still expect tariff-induced costs to ultimately pass through almost completely to consumer prices.

Regarding monetary policy, we're looking for the Fed to continue lowering interest rates, but at a slower pace. We forecast one more 25 bp cut this year and two cuts next year, although the potential remains for one of the 2026 cuts to get pulled forward into 2025.

Important information on risk

Investing involves risk; principal loss is possible. There is no guarantee the Fund's investment objectives will be achieved.

- Equity investments are subject to market risk, common stock risk, covered call risk, short sale risk, and derivatives risk. Prices of equity securities may decline significantly over short or extended periods of time.
- Foreign investments involve additional risks, including currency fluctuation, political and economic instability, lack of liquidity and differing legal and accounting standards. These risks are magnified in emerging markets.
- Debt and fixed income securities are subject to market risk, credit risk, interest rate risk, call risk, and income risk. As interest rates rise, bond prices fall. Issuers of debt securities may fail to make interest and other payments and the solvency of the issuers is not guaranteed. Market conditions, such as a decrease in market liquidity, may mean that the Fund may not be able to buy or sell debt securities at their true value.
- Investments in below investment grade or high yield securities are subject to liquidity risk and heightened credit risk.
- Preferred securities are subordinate to bonds and other debt instruments in a company's capital structure and therefore are subject to greater credit risk.
- Asset-backed and mortgage-backed securities are subject to additional risks such as prepayment risk, liquidity risk and adverse economic developments.
- The use of derivatives involves substantial financial risks and transaction costs.

A complete description of the risks of investing in the Fund can be found in the Key Investment Information Document(s) (KIIDs) and the Prospectus.
