Investing in separately managed accounts

The need for personalization and adaptability has grown as investors search for solutions to meet their individualized financial objectives. Separately managed accounts provide the flexibility and control needed to express preferences when investing for a particular outcome.

What is a separately managed account?

A separately managed account (SMA) is a portfolio of fixed income, equities or other securities that can be customized to achieve an individual investor's objectives. SMAs are ideal for clients seeking to capitalize on the benefits of working with a professional investment manager while retaining the ability to influence various aspects of their portfolio.

3 things to know about separately managed accounts

1

HOW DO SMAs WORK?

SMAs offer a way for individual investors to be more closely aligned with the investment team responsible for their accounts.

In an SMA, the portfolio manager is responsible for managing the underlying assets on behalf of the individual investor who maintains direct ownership of the investments. The portfolio managers typically charge a fee based on the size of the account and/or the amount of customization requested.

2

WHO TYPICALLY USES A SMA?

SMAs are well-suited for clients with larger account sizes that are seeking investment flexibility, tax efficiency and transparency.

3

WHAT ARE THE BENEFITS OF SMA CUSTOMIZATION?

Customization allows investors to express portfolio preferences, resulting in greater control and more personalized investment outcomes. Examples include:

- Address complicated tax needs
- Hold or gradually transition carried-over securities
- Set a restriction or target within the range of the portfolio or exclude certain sectors
- Set up regular withdrawals for income

How do separately managed accounts compare to other investment solutions?

* Exchange-traded funds and mutual funds can be either passively or actively managed.

Laddered portfolios, exchange-traded funds, separately managed accounts, mutual funds, closed-end funds, interval funds, and limited partnerships are different types of investment vehicles with different expense structures and different inflows/outflows and distribution requirements. Shares of exchange-traded funds are bought and sold at market price as opposed to net asset value. As a result, an investor may pay more than net asset value when buying and receive less than net asset value when selling. In addition, brokerage commissions will reduce returns. Fund shares are not individually redeemable directly with the Fund, but blocks of shares may be acquired from the Fund and tendered for redemption to the Fund by certain institutional investors in creation units. A closed-end fund's use of leverage creates the possibility of higher volatility for the fund's per share NAV, market price, distributions and returns. There is no assurance that a fund's leveraging strategy will be successful. Closed-end funds historical distribution sources have included net investment income, realized gains and return of capital. Closed-end fund shares may frequently trade at a discount or premium to their net asset value. Limited partnerships offer "an interest" to investors (the "Limited Partners") who meet certain eligibility criteria, as defined in the Investment Company Act of 1940. Limited partnerships may also use leverage and hedging techniques to increase returns and reduce the exposure of the portfolio to adverse business or market conditions. There can be no assurance that the investment objectives of the partnership will be achieved.

Please check with your firm for availability.

SMA accounts typically require a minimum account of $100,000 for equity and asset allocation strategies and $250,000 for fixed income strategies, although the specific minimum account size varies by program and may be subject to change. The manager may waive these minimums based on client type, asset class, pre-existing relationship with client and other factors. For certain accounts, a negotiated minimum annual fee applies. Please consult with your Nuveen Advisor Consultant for applicable minimums.

Clients should consult their financial professional regarding unknown financial terms and concepts. Important information on risk

All investments carry a certain degree of risk, including possible loss of principal, and there is no assurance that an investment will provide positive performance over any period of time. An investment in any municipal portfolio should be made with an understanding of the risks of investing in municipal bonds, such as interest rate risk, credit risk, and market risk. The value of the portfolio will fluctuate based on the value of the underlying securities. Please contact a tax professional regarding the appropriateness of tax-exempt investments in your portfolio. Nuveen is not a tax professional. In addition, the callability of bonds may increase interest rate risk exposure in the laddered portfolios. Upon call, a client may be confronted with a less favorable interest rate environment than the one that existed when the original bond was purchased.

If sold prior to maturity, municipal securities are subject to gain/losses based on the level of interest rates, market conditions and the credit quality of the issuer. Income may be subject to the alternative minimum tax (AMT) and/or state and local taxes, based on the state of residence. Income from municipal bonds held by a portfolio could be declared taxable because of unfavorable changes in tax laws, adverse interpretations by the Internal Revenue Service or state tax authorities, or noncompliant conduct of a bond issuer. Some income may be subject to state and local taxes and to the federal alternative minimum tax. Capital gains, if any, are subject to tax.
